BANANA DROPS AND FUSEL OIL.

The question having been asked me whether Dr. Chilten was the person alluded to as the colaborator of Pref.

Mapes, in the letter that I addressed to the latter on the 18th inst. I answer, decidedly not. I published a letter of thanks to Br. Chilten and Dr. Torrey, for the very handsome behavior of both there gentlemen, at the time of thanks to Br. Chilten and Dr. Torrey, for the very handsome behavior of both there gentlemen, at the time of the funel oil fever, and should have felt happy to include Prof. J. J. Mapes, if he had at that time addressed me through the press six lines at the utmost. Dr. Chilton's opinion was decidedly adverse to that of the Professor and Dr. Torrey, although perfectly acquainted with the chemical composition, candidly confessed that of his professional knowledge he could not pronounce either way, as to its effects on the human system. Prof. Mapes, however, made the experiment "with himself" and, as a matter of curiosity, I should like to know the result.
